According to the Farmington Times, St. Francois county had mined and sold, up to June 30, last, $70,000,000 worth of lead concentrates, mined from a triangular district lying between Bonne Terre, Leadwood and Flat River. And all from approximately 300 acres of land actually mined. What must yet be under the land not yet mined, in the lead belt of that county! We think that our cotton crop, which yields about $1,500,000 a year, is a rich asset; but it is not to be compared with lead mining.—Dunklin County Democrat.

CARLETON RECITAL.

There has never been presented a more artistic entertainment by a college faculty in Farmington than that given last Thursday evening at the Methodist Church by Carleton College. The church was packed to overflowing by an audience that was delighted with every number. Prof. McFerrin on the piano and Prof. Chase on the violin are both artists, and their many friends were glad to welcome them again. The two new members were Miss McClanahan in the Department of Expression, and Miss Mercer in the vocal department, and both enraptured the audience with their selections. Miss McClanahan is undoubtedly one of the finest readers ever heard in Farmington, her voice being under perfect control in varying emotions. Miss Mercer gave several songs with a wide range in a very pleasing manner. Carleton is to be congratulated on such a faculty and it is to be hoped that there will be many pupils to take advantage of these unusual opportunities in the various departments.

DEATH OF GEORGE EISENBERG.

Mr. George Eisenberg, one of Farmington's old and much esteemed citizens, died at the home of his son, Prof. John C. Eisenberg, in St. Louis, on the 18th inst., and his body was brought to Farmington on Sunday, the funeral obsequies taking place on Monday morning. Mr. Eisenberg has been a resident of Farmington more than fifty years, engaged in the saddle and harness business. He was a man of quiet, unobtrusive nature, who had the confidence and good will of all who knew him. He was a member of Farmington Lodge No. 132 A. F. & A. M., and for many years held the position of Tyler in that lodge. The lodge officiated at his funeral on Monday, and a large number of our people gathered to pay the last sad tribute of respect to one who had gone in and out among us for so many years, and whose life had been one of quiet uprightness.

Mr. Eisenberg was born at Waldeck, Germany June 10, 1856, and came over to America with his parents when thirteen years of age, locating at Perryville, where his youth was spent. When a young man he came to Farmington and engaged in the saddle and harness business, which he continued up to the time of his death. On December 25, 1896, he was married to Miss Elizabeth Gilbert, who died about a year ago. To this union four children were born, three of whom are living—Mrs. Henry Vasholt of Warrenton, Prof. John C. Eisenberg of St. Louis, and Mrs. Wm. Beard of New York. In 1876 Mr. Eisenberg joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, and lived a consistent and devoted member to the end. His health failing him he went to St. Louis about four or five weeks ago for treatment in a hospital, and after improving somewhat was removed to the home of his son in that city, where he died on the 18th.

BETTER LATE THAN NEVER

Young man, young woman, if you have not already enrolled elsewhere for the school year, kindly consider promptly and carefully the golden, weighty words of advice and counsel given by the following eminent statesmen, authors, ministers, lawyers, bankers, merchants, educators, Governors, yea, the President of the United States. Read what they say:

By all means attend a good business college—Henry Ward Beecher.

Get busy in a business college, where everybody is busy—Elbert Hubbard.

A great, grand work is being done by the business colleges—John A. Wanamaker, Merchant Prince.

Business colleges are among the most useful institutions of this country.—Judge Noah Davis.

A shorthand writer who can typewrite his notes is safer from poverty than a great Greek scholar.—Charles Reade.

General principles are the same in all business affairs, and instruction in these should be universal—Marshall Field.

Business men who expect to get the most out of life, must educate themselves for business—Richard Yates, ex-Gov. of Ill.

I have a particular hobby. My craze is that every young person of either sex should learn at least shorthand and typewriting.—P. T. Barnum, Great Showman.

With business education more general, we may expect a better order of business men.—Lyman J. Gage, ex-Secretary of U. S. Treasury.

If a father wishes to give his son a legacy better than lands, houses, gold or silver, let him give him a practical business education.—Horace Mann, Noted Educator.

Business colleges furnish their graduates with a better education for practical purposes than either Princeton, Harvard or Yale.—Ex-President James A. Garfield.

It is the best plan ever adopted to educate young people for the responsible undertaking of commercial life.—Thos. Fletcher, ex-Governor of Missouri.

Without a thorough and practical business education, a business man is like a ship at sea without a compass or rudder.—W. T. Harris, U. S. Commissioner of Education, Washington, D. C.

No lady can have a better safeguard against adversity of fortune or a better recourse in time of need than a knowledge of bookkeeping and business affairs.—Harriet Beecher Stowe.

The best advice I can offer is for every young man to attend some first-class commercial school. No matter what it costs, it will be the best investment he can make.—Chancellor Kent.

I warn every boy or girl to be careful in getting an education not to omit the most practical of all studies—the study of business.—Hon. F. P. Sargent, former U. S. Com. of Immigration.

The undersigned quotes the words of these eminent persons to prove his claims that a business college education should be secured by every young man and woman. Hence, scores of young people of St. Francois and surrounding counties should yet enter one of the Mootbart Business Colleges. Schools located in Farmington, Bonne Terre, DeSoto and Cape Girardeau. ## A NEW FIRM IN TOWN

WE take pleasure in informing you that we have purchased the Harness and Saddlery Business so long owned, and so successfully conducted, by Mr. George Eisenberg, in Farmington. You have known Mr. Eisenberg for many years, no doubt, and also know that your wants in the line of good harness, saddles, robes, blankets, whips, etc., could always be supplied at this store.

There will be no change in this satisfactory condition, except that we shall carry a larger stock of dependable harness and leather goods, and will add the latest machinery to our manufacturing and repair department. We "Know" the harness business, having been engaged in it for many years, both in Germany and in St. Louis.

We are locating in Farmington because we believe in Farmington. It is a good business city with a progressive citizenship in the heart of a first-class agricultural district, where good farms are owned by good farmers. These have long patronized this store, and we invite the continuance of their patronage. Come in and see us, shake hands and get acquainted, farm and town folks. We want to feel at home in Farmington and to have you all feel at home with us.

We take possession on Monday, September 27.

LIKE A COMBINATION OF FRUITS AND FLOWERS

Our unequalled soda soothes and delights by its exquisite compound of flavors. Nothing like it is obtainable elsewhere. You get the genuine product, and not an imitation, at our fountain of flowing coolness, chilled yet more by the cream with which the foaming mixture is served. Don't take a substitute for the champion. Doing that is being unkind to one's self.
